Dr. Badrunnisa delivered his speech during the inaugural address. She spoke to the audience in order to raise knowledge about the NAAC Assessment and Accreditation process and procedures. She explained the revamped certification framework's new processes, which include 70% of the process being completed online. She also explained the three components of the accreditation process: quantitative metrics validated by a Data Verification and Validation (DVV) partner, qualitative metrics validated by members of the Peer Team, and the Students Satisfactory Survey (SSS). SSS was first presented by the NAAC in the history of quality assurance in the entire world, according to Dr. Badrunnisa. She went into greater detail on the SSS procedure used in the NAAC assessment. In a nutshell, she discussed and imparted knowledge about all of the Seven Criteria in the evaluation process in a logical manner, as well as describing the DVV process in detail using screenshots from the portal. The talk also covered non-compliance with the DVV process. She also provided information on the logistics and management of the peer team visit.
